

Ciatta MVP Test Persona

Status: Provisional hypothesis, not a validated ICP.

Person: A woman managing her own health who has accumulated information across multiple systems over time.

Health reality: Her data is fragmented across wearables/apps, cycle tracking, appointments, medications, symptoms, notes, and memory.

Core frustration: She has plenty of information but struggles to understand what is changing, what connects, and whether something matters.

Current workaround: She checks multiple apps, searches her history, remembers symptoms/events, or manually connects the dots herself.

Desired outcome: A clearer view of her health over time and in context, without having to interpret everything herself.

Trust requirement: She would rather Ciatta say “we don't know yet” than give her a confident but unsupported explanation.

Ciatta's job: Surface only what the available evidence can support, including meaningful changes and relationships, while remaining silent when it cannot.

Success moment:

“I didn't realize those things were connected until I saw them together.”